an individual basis as the collectability of classified loans is evaluated with new information. As the Companyâ€™s portfolio has matured, historical loss ratios have been closely monitored. The review of the appropriateness of the allowance is performed by executive management and presented to the Audit and Risk Committees of the Board of Directors for their review. The committees report to the board as part of the board's quarterly review of the Companyâ€™s consolidated financial statements.â€‹Reclassification and Correctionâ€‹Certain amounts previously reported have been reclassified to conform to the current quarterâ€™s presentation. Such reclassifications had no effect on net income and shareholdersâ€™ equity.â€‹Note 3 â€” Recent Accounting and Regulatory Pronouncements â€‹Accounting Standards AdoptedIn March 2023, the FASB issued ASU 2023-02,Â Investments - Equity Method and Joint Ventures (Topic 323): Accounting for Investments in Tax Credit Structures Using the Proportional Amortization Method. The amendments in this update allow the option for an entity to apply the proportional amortization method of accounting to other equity investments, in addition to the previously permitted low-income housing tax credit (â€œLIHTCâ€) structured investments, that are made for the primary purpose of receiving tax credits or other income tax benefits, if certain conditions are met. The proportional amortization method of accounting results in the amortization of applicable investments, as well as the related income tax credits or other income tax benefits received, being presented on a single line within income tax expense on the consolidated statements of income. Prior to this update, the application of the proportional amortization method of accounting was limited to LIHTC structured investments. Under this update, an entity has the option to apply the proportional amortization method of accounting to applicable investments on a tax-credit-program-by-tax-credit-program basis. Also under this update, LIHTC structured investments for which the proportional amortization method is not applied can no longer be accounted for using the delayed equity contribution guidance. The amendments in this update also require additional disclosures in interim and annual periods concerning investments for which the proportional amortization method is applied, including the nature of tax equity investments, the effect of tax equity investments and related income tax credits and other income tax benefits on the financial position and results of operations.â€‹The Company adopted ASU 2023-02 effective January 1, 2024, and changed the accounting method of its LIHTC structured investments from the equity method to the proportional amortization method. The Company adopted ASU 2023-02 using the modified retrospective approach. Under this adoption approach, management was required to verify the LIHTCs met the conditions for proportional amortization method as of the date the investments were originally made by the Bank. In addition, management evaluated the actual tax credits and other income tax benefits received, as well as the remaining benefits expected to be received, as of the adoption date. The cumulative difference between the equity method and proportional amortization method resulted in a one-time cumulative effect adjustment recorded through retained earnings as of January 1, 2024. The cumulative effect resulting from the adoption of proportional amortization method was a net reduction to retained earnings of $9.4 million, which reflects the amortization expense in proportion to the tax credits and benefits realized on a life-to-date basis of all LIHTCs as of December 31, 2023. Additionally, the proportional amortization method does not require deferred taxes be tracked as was the case with the equity method; therefore, deferred taxes of $836,000Â were written-off as an additional reduction to retained earnings effective January 1, 2024. â€‹<12 Table of ContentsÂ Issued But Not Yet Adopted Accounting Standardsâ€‹In November 2023, the FASB issued ASU No. 2023-07,Â Segment Reporting (Topic 280): Improvements to Reportable Segment Disclosures, to improve disclosures about a public entityâ€™s reportable segments and address requests from investors and other allocators of capital for additional, more detailed information about a reportable segmentâ€™s expenses. Segment information gives investors an understanding of overall performance and is key to assessing potential future cash flows. In addition, although information about a segmentâ€™s revenue and measure of profit or loss is disclosed in an entityâ€™s financial statements, there is limited information disclosed about a segmentâ€™s expenses. The key amendments include annual and interim disclosures of significant expenses and other segment items that are regularly provided to the chief operating decision maker and included within each reported measure of profit or loss, as well as any other key measure of performance used for segment management decisions. This ASU also requires disclosure of key profitability measures used in assessing performance and how to allocate resources. The amendments in this ASU are effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2023, and for interim periods within fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2024, with early adoption permitted. The Company does not anticipate this ASU will have a material impact on its financial statements.â€‹In December 2023, the FASB issued ASU No. 2023-09,Â Income Taxes (Topic 740): Improvements to Income Tax Disclosures, which aims to address requests for improved income tax disclosures from investors, lenders, creditors and other allocators of capital (collectively, â€œinvestorsâ€) that use the financial statements to make capital allocation decisions. The amendments in this ASU address investor requests for more transparency about income tax information, including jurisdictional information, by requiring consistent categories and greater disaggregation of information in both the rate reconciliation and income taxes paid disaggregated by jurisdiction. The amendments are effective for annual periods beginning after December 15, 2024. The Company does not anticipate this ASU will have a material impact on its financial statements.â€‹Note 4 â€” Mergers and Acquisitions â€‹Announcement of Merger between SouthState and Independent Bank Group, Inc. (â€œIndependentâ€)On May 20, 2024, the Company and Independent, a Texas-based corporation, announced that the companies have entered into an Agreement and Plan of Merger (the â€œMerger Agreementâ€). The Merger Agreement provides that, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth therein, Independent will merge with and into the Company, with the Company continuing as the surviving corporation in the merger. Immediately following the merger, Independentâ€™s wholly owned banking subsidiary, Independent Bank will merge with and into the Companyâ€™s wholly owned banking subsidiary, SouthState Bank, National Association, which will continue as the surviving bank in the bank merger. The Merger Agreement was approved by the Boards of Directors of the Company and Independent by the unanimous vote of the directors present at the applicable meeting. The merger is subject to approvals by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (â€œFederal Reserveâ€), and the Companyâ€™s and Independentâ€™s shareholders. The transaction is expected to close during the first quarter of 2025, subject to the satisfaction of customary closing conditions, including receipt of required statutory approvals and approval by the shareholders of each of the Company and Independent. These leases are all real estate leases. Terms and conditions are similar to those real estate operating leases described above. Lease classifications from the acquired institutions were retained. At June 30, 2024, we did not maintain any leases with related parties, and determined that the number and dollar amount of our equipment leases was immaterial. As of June 30, 2024, we had no additional operating leases that have not yet commenced. Equipment Lessor SouthState has an Equipment Finance Group which goes to market through intermediaries. The Equipment Finance Group primarily focuses on serving the construction and utility segments. Lease terms typically range from 24 months to 120 months. At the end of the lease term, the lessee has the option to renew the lease, return the equipment, or purchase the equipment. In the event the equipment is returned, there is a remarketing agreement with the intermediary to sell the equipment. The Equipment Finance Group offers the following lease products: TRAC Leases, Split-TRAC Leases, and FMV Leases. Direct finance equipment leases are included in commercial and industrial loans on the Consolidated Balance Sheets.The estimated residual values for direct finance leases are established by an approved intermediary who utilizes internally developed analyses, external studies, and/or third-party appraisals to establish a residual position. FMV and Split-TRAC leases have residual risk due to their unguaranteed residual value whereas TRAC leases have a guaranteed residual value. Expected credit losses on direct financing leases and the related estimated residual values are included in the Commercial and Industrial loan segment for the ACL.â€‹28 Table of ContentsÂ The following table summarizes lease receivables and investment in operating leases and their corresponding balance sheet location at June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023:â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹

Georgia, and two cases pending in the Circuit Court for Polk County, Florida. An additional case pending in the Circuit Court for Broward County, Florida, that does not seek class certification requests a declaratory judgment that the Bank leaked sensitive data belonging to the named plaintiff (each such litigation, a â€œCyber Incident Suitâ€). We anticipate that all putative class actions will be consolidated into one litigation. Â At this time, neither the Bank nor the Company is able to reasonably estimate the amount or range of reasonably possible loss, if any, that might result from the Cyber Incident Suits. However, the Bank believes that it has defenses to the claims and intends to vigorously defend against the Cyber Incident Suits. Accordingly, no amounts have been recorded in the unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements for the Cyber Incident Suits. The Company will continue to evaluate information as it becomes known and will record an estimate for losses at the time or times when it is both probable that a loss has been incurred and the amount of the loss is reasonably estimable. Additional lawsuits and claims related to the Cyber Incident may be asserted by or on behalf of customers, shareholders, or others seeking damages or other related relief and additional inquiries from governmental agencies may be received or investigations by governmental agencies commenced.Note 14 â€” Fair Valueâ€‹GAAP defines fair value and establishes a framework for measuring and disclosing fair value. Fair value should be based on the assumptions market participants would use when pricing an asset or liability and establishes a fair value hierarchy that prioritizes the information used to develop those assumptions.â€‹The Company uses fair value measurements to record fair value adjustments to certain assets and liabilities and to determine fair value disclosures. Available for sale and trading securities, derivative contracts, mortgage loans held for sale, SBA servicing rights, and mortgage servicing rights (â€œMSRsâ€) are recorded at fair value on a recurring basis. Additionally, from time to time, we may be required to record at fair value other assets on a nonrecurring basis, such as impaired loans, OREO, bank properties held for sale, and certain other assets. These nonrecurring fair value adjustments typically involve application of lower of cost or market accounting or write-downs of individual assets.â€‹FASB ASC Topic 820 establishes a three-tier fair value hierarchy which prioritizes the inputs used in measuring fair value as follows:â€‹Level 1Observable inputs such as quoted prices in active markets;Level 2Inputs, other than the quoted prices in active markets, that are observable either directly or indirectly; andLevel 3Unobservable inputs in which there is little or no market data, which require the reporting entity to develop its own assumptions.â€‹34 Table of ContentsÂ A description of valuation methodologies used for assets recorded at fair value is disclosed in Note 25 â€” Fair Value of our Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended DecemberÂ 31, 2023. â€‹Assets and Liabilities Recorded at Fair Value on a Recurring Basisâ€‹The table below presents the recorded amount of assets and liabilities measured at fair value on a recurring basis:â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹Â Â Â Â Â â€‹â€‹Â Â Â Â Â QuotedÂ PricesÂ Â Â Â â€‹â€‹Â Â Â Â Â â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹InÂ Activeâ€‹SignificantâŠâ€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹MarketsâŠ 30, 2024:â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹

MSRs are recorded at fair value with changes in fair value recorded as a component of Mortgage Banking Income in the Consolidated Statements of Income. The market value adjustments related to MSRs recorded in Mortgage Banking Income for the three and six months ended June 30, 2024 and June 30, 2023 were gains of $830,000 and $3.2 million, compared with gains of $2.0 million and $688,000, respectively. The Company has used various free standing derivative instruments to mitigate the income statement effect of changes in fair value resulting from changes in market value adjustments, in addition to changes in valuation inputs and assumptions related to MSRs.â€‹â€‹44 Table of ContentsÂ See Note 14 â€” Fair Value for the changes in fair value of MSRs. changes in our consolidated financial position and consolidated results of operations and related disclosures. Understanding our accounting policies is fundamental to understanding our consolidated financial position and consolidated results of operations. Accordingly, our significant accounting policies and changes in accounting principles and effects of new accounting pronouncements are discussed in Note 2 â€" Summary of Significant Accounting Policies and Note 3 â€" Recent Accounting and Regulatory Pronouncements of our consolidated financial statements in this Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q and in Note 1 â€" Summary of Significant Accounting Policies of our Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended DecemberÂ 31, 2023.The following is a summary of our ACL critical accounting policy, which is highly dependent on estimates, assumptions and judgments.Allowance for Credit Losses or ACLâ€‹The ACL reflects managementâ€™s estimate of the portion of the amortized cost of loans and unfunded commitments that it does not expect to collect. Management has a methodology determining its ACL for loans held for investment and certain off-balance-sheet credit exposures. Management considers the effects of past events, current conditions, and reasonable and supportable forecasts on the collectability of the loan portfolio. The Companyâ€™s estimate of its ACL involves a high degree of judgment; therefore, managementâ€™s process for determining expected credit losses may result in a range of expected credit losses. It is possible that others, given the same information, may at any point in time reach a different reasonable conclusion. The Companyâ€™s ACL recorded on the balance sheet reflects managementâ€™s best estimate within the range of expected credit losses. The Company recognizes in net income the amount needed to adjust the ACL for managementâ€™s current estimate of expected credit losses. See Note 2â€"Summary of Significant Accounting Policies for further detailed descriptions of our estimation process and methodology related to the ACL. See also Note 7â€"Allowance for Credit Losses and â€œAllowance for Credit Losses (â€œACLâ€) on Loans and Certain Off-Balance-Sheet Credit Exposuresâ€ in this MD&A.One of the most significant judgments influencing the ACL is the macroeconomic forecasts from the third-party service provider. Changes in the economic forecasts may significantly affect the estimated credit losses which may potentially lead to materially different quantitatively modeled allowance levels from one reporting period to the next. Given the dynamic relationship between macroeconomic variables, it is difficult to estimate the impact of a change in any one individual variable on the ACL. SouthState uses a third-party service provider to support the economic forecast assumptions under CECL forecast by providing various levels of economic scenarios. These scenarios are weighted in accordance with management assessment of scenarios as well as expectations of the general market and industry conditions. To illustrate the sensitivity of these scenarios, if a 100% probability weighting was applied to the adverse scenario rather than using the probability-weighted three scenario approach, this would result in an increase in the ACL by approximately $213.9 million (all other things equal, including no compensating adjustments to qualitative factor adjustments). Conversely, if a 100% probability weighting was applied to the upside scenario, this would result in a decrease in the ACL by approximately $98.2 million. The adverse scenario includes assumptions including, but not limited to, elevated interest rates weakening consumers and public confidence, inflation, the Russian invasion of Ukraine persisting longer than expected and conflict in the Middle East leading to a wider war, tensions between China and Taiwan interrupt trade, political risks, increased unemployment and the U.S. economy falling into recession in 2024. Conversely, the upside scenario includes assumptions such as a swift resolution of international conflicts, stabilization of consumer confidence, more than full employment, reduced political tensions, and other favorable assumptions. This sensitivity analysis and related impact on the ACL is a hypothetical analysis and is not intended to represent managementâ€™s judgments or assumptions of qualitative loss factors that were utilized at June 30, 2024.â€‹â€‹50 Table of ContentsÂ Results of Operations â€‹Overviewâ€‹We reported consolidated net income of $132.4 million, or diluted earnings per share (â€œEPSâ€) of $1.73, for the second quarter of 2024 as compared to consolidated net income of $123.4 million, or diluted EPS of $1.62, in the comparable period of 2023, a 7.2% increase in consolidated net income and a 6.8% increase in diluted EPS. During the six months ended June 30, 2024, we reported consolidated net income of $247.4 million, or diluted EPS of $3.23, as compared to consolidated net income of $263.4 million, or diluted EPS of $3.45, in the comparable period of 2023, a 6.1% decrease in consolidated net income and a 6.4% decrease in diluted EPS. The $8.9 million increase in consolidated net income for the second quarter of 2024 compared to the same period of 2023 was the net result of the following items:â€‹â—A $53.1 million increase in interest income, resulting from a $59.0 million increase in interest income from loans and loans held for sale partially offset by a $2.3 million decrease in interest income from investment securities, and a $3.6 million decrease in interest income on federal funds sold, securities purchased under agreement to resell and interest-bearing deposits. The increase in interest income from loans was due to an increase in the yield of 43 basis points as loans continued to reprice higher from the rising rate environment in 2022 and in 2023 as the Federal Reserve Bank raised its federal funds rate by 525 basis points. The increase in interest income was also due to an increase in the average balance of loans, including loans held for sale, of $1.9 billion through organic loan growth;â—A $64.6 million increase in interest expense, which resulted from a $64.7 million increase in interest expense from deposits, a $1.5 million increase in interest expense in federal funds purchased and securities sold under agreements to repurchase partially offset by a $1.6 million decrease in interest expense from corporate and subordinated debentures and other borrowings. The increase in interest expense from deposits resulted mainly from an increase in costs due to the higher interest rate environment with the increase in interest rates in 2022 and 2023. This increase in average cost of deposits was felt throughout 2023 starting with the stress in the financial markets and liquidity that occurred in March 2023 with the closure of a few failed financial institutions. The average cost of deposits, excluding noninterest-bearing deposits, increased by 87 basis points compared to the second quarter of 2023;â—An $34.5 million decrease in the provision for credit losses, as the Company recorded a provision for credit losses of $3.9 million in the second quarter of 2024 while recording a provision for credit losses of $38.4 million in the second quarter of 2023. During the second quarter of 2024, we recorded a lower provision for credit losses as economic forecasts improved since the second quarter of 2023, with inflation falling and interest rates stabilizing, along with lower new loan growth in the second quarter of 2024 compared to the same period in 2023;â—A $2.0 million decrease in noninterest income due to a decline in correspondent banking and capital market income of $14.3 million. This decrease was mostly offset by an increase in fees on deposit accounts of $741,000, in mortgage banking income of $1.6 million, in trust and investment services income of $1.3 million, in SBA income of $1.1 million, in bank owned life insurance income of $1.1 million and in other noninterest income of $6.6 million. The increase in other noninterest income is mainly attributable to $5.2 million in income from tax refunds during the second quarter of 2024. See Noninterest Income section on page 57 for further discussion; â—A $6.1 million increase in noninterest expense, which resulted primarily from an increase in salaries and employee benefits of $4.1 million, in merger, branch consolidation, severance related and other expense of $4.0 million, in advertising and marketing of $1.1 million, in OREO and loan related expense of $1.3 million and an information services expense of $2.0 million. These increases were partially offset by declines in FDIC assessment and other regulatory charges, excluding the special FDIC assessment allocated to the Bank, of $2.0 million, amortization of intangibles of $1.3 million and other noninterest expense of $3.1 million. The decrease in other noninterest expense is mainly related to a release in accrued expense for an uncertain tax position (â€œUTPâ€) of $2.0 million in the second quarter of 2024. See Noninterest Expense section on page 59 for further discussion; andâ€‹51 Table of ContentsÂ â—Higher income tax provision of $6.0 million due to higher pretax book income between the two quarters. The Company recorded pretax book income of $172.8 million in the second quarter of 2024 compared to pretax book income of $157.9 million in the second quarter of 2023. The increase was also due to the effects of the Company adopting ASU 2023-02 in the first quarter of 2024 whereby it applied the proportional amortization method of accounting related to its low-income housing tax credits partnerships (â€œLIHTCâ€). With the adoption of ASU 2023-02, the amortization of the LIHTCs is now recorded within Provision for Income Taxes rather than Other Noninterest Expense on the Statement of Income. The amortization for the Companyâ€™s LIHTCs totaled $3.5 million during the second quarter of 2024. The change in the accounting method, in addition to other items recorded during the current quarter, increased our effective tax rate for the second quarter in 2024 compared to the same period in 2023. Our effective tax rate was 23.42% for the three months ended June 30, 2024, compared to 21.84% for the three months ended June 30, 2023. See Income Tax Expense section on page 60 for further discussion.â€‹Our quarterly efficiency ratio increased to 57.0% in the second quarter of 2024 compared to 53.6% in the second quarter of 2023. The increase in the efficiency ratio compared to the second quarter of 2023 was the result of an 3.1% decrease in the total of tax-equivalent net interest income and noninterest income along with a 3.0% increase in noninterest expense (excluding amortization of intangibles). This decrease was reflective of a 55.5% increase in interest expense as the repricing of interest-bearing liabilities caught up with the repricing of interest-earning assets in 2023 and 2024 resulting from the rising rate environment. The increase in noninterest expense was reflective of a 2.8% increase in salaries and employee benefits and a 220.0% increase in merger and branch consolidation related expense mostly related to the proposed merger with Independent.â€‹Basic and diluted EPS were $1.74 and $1.73, respectively for the second quarter of 2024, compared to $1.62 for the second quarter of 2023. The increase in basic and diluted EPS was due to a 7.2% increase in net income in the second quarter of 2024 compared to the same period in 2023. The effects from the increase in net income were partially offset by an increase in average basic common shares of 0.3%. The increase in net income in the second quarter of 2024 was mainly attributable to a decrease in provision for credit losses during the second quarter of 2024. Selected Figures and Ratiosâ€‹â€‹â€‹â half of 2024 with higher mortgage rates continuing during 2024. We allocated a higher percentage of mortgage production to the secondary market in 2024 compared to 2023 from 34% to 57%.oMortgage income from the secondary market increased by $2.8 million between the comparable periods resulting from a $1.0 million increase in the fair value of MBS forward trades, a $942,000 increase in the fair value of loans held for sale, a $795,000 increase in the gain on sale of mortgage loans, which is net of the commission expense related to mortgage production, and the change in fair value of the pipeline of $83,000. Mortgage commission expense was $5.5 million in 2024 compared to $3.6 million in 2023.oThe increase in mortgage servicing related income, net of the hedge, in 2024 was due to a $428,000 increase in the change in fair value of the MSR including decay and a $135,000 increase in service fee income. The increase in fair value of the MSR between the comparable periods was primarily due to an increase in the change in fair value from interest rates of $2.5 million, offset by a $1.9 million decrease from gains/losses on the MSR hedge and a $214,000 decline in MSR decay. â—Correspondent banking and capital markets income for 2024 decreased by $23.6 million, or 72.0%, compared to 2023. The decline was primarily related to a decrease of $17.8 million in income generated from the sale of customer swap ARC hedges in 2024 compared to 2023 resulting from the higher interest rate environment in 2024. The decline was also due to the expense attributable to the variation margin payments for centrally cleared swaps where we recorded an expense of $21.7 million related to variation margin payments in the 2024 compared to an expense of $16.9 million in 2023. In addition, other operational fee income was lower by $1.2 million in 2024 compared to 2023. â—SBA income, including the impact from the change to fair value accounting, increased by $1.7 million, or 25.9% in 2024 compared to 2023. Â The increase was primarily attributable to an increase in gains on sale of SBA loans of $1.7 million. Â â—Other income increased by $9.8 million, or 211.7%, in 2024 compared to 2023. This increase was due to approximately $5.2 million in income recognized on federal tax refunds received during the second quarter of 2024 for net operating loss carrybacks filed in 2021, the Bank recognizing approximately $3.0 million in credits from an external vendor in 2024, and approximately $876,000 resulting from the release of accrued expense attributable to UTPs. â€‹59 Table of ContentsÂ Noninterest Expenseâ€‹â€‹â€‹â respectively, with the increase in equity from the net income recognized. Total risk-based capital increased by 3.4% and 3.8% at both the Company and Bank, respectively, with the increase in equity resulting from net income along with the increase in the allowance for credit losses and unfunded commitments includable in Tier 2 capital. Both regulatory risk-based assets and quarterly average assets remained reasonably flat compared to the fourth quarter with average assets for both the Company and Bank increasing by 0.5% and risk-based assets increasing by 0.9%. Our capital ratios are currently well in excess of the minimum standards and continue to be in the â€œwell capitalizedâ€ regulatory classification.Liquidityâ€‹Liquidity refers to our ability to generate sufficient cash to meet our financial obligations, which arise primarily from the withdrawal of deposits, extension of credit and payment of operating expenses. Liquidity risk is the risk that the Bankâ€™s financial condition or overall safety and soundness is adversely affected by an inability (or perceived inability) to meet its obligations. Our Asset Liability Management Committee (â€œALCOâ€) is charged with the responsibility of monitoring policies designed to ensure acceptable composition of our asset/liability mix. Two critical areas of focus for ALCO are interest rate sensitivity and liquidity risk management. We have employed our funds in a manner to provide liquidity from both assets and liabilities sufficient to meet our cash needs.â€‹The ALCO has established key risk indicators to monitor liquidity and interest rate risk. The key risk indicators are reviewed and approved by the ALCO on an annual basis. The liquidity key risk indicators include the loan to deposit ratio, net noncore funding dependence ratio, On-hand liquidity to total liabilities ratio, the percentage of securities pledged to total securities, and the ratio of brokered deposits to total deposits. As of June 30, 2024, the Company was operating within its liquidity policy limits.â€‹Asset liquidity is maintained by the maturity structure of loans, investment securities and other short-term investments. Management has policies and procedures governing the length of time to maturity on loans and investments. Normally, changes in the earning asset mix are of a longer-term nature and are not used for day-to-day corporate liquidity needs.Our liabilities provide liquidity on a day-to-day basis. Daily liquidity needs are met from deposit levels or from our use of federal funds purchased, securities sold under agreements to repurchase, interest-bearing deposits at other banks and other short-term borrowings. We engage in routine activities to retain deposits intended to enhance our liquidity position. These routine activities include various measures, such as the following:â€‹â—Emphasizing relationship banking to new and existing customers, where borrowers are encouraged and normally expected to maintain deposit accounts with our Bank;â—Pricing deposits, including certificates of deposit, at rate levels that will attract and /or retain balances of deposits that will enhance our Bankâ€™s asset/liability management and net interest margin requirements; andâ—Continually working to identify and introduce new products that will attract customers or enhance our Bankâ€™s appeal as a primary provider of financial services.72 Table of ContentsÂ Overall, total loans increased $846.1 million, or 5.3% annualized in first six months of 2024. Our non-acquired loan portfolio increased by approximately $1.5 billion, or approximately 11.7% annualized, compared to the balance at DecemberÂ 31, 2023. The increase from DecemberÂ 31, 2023 was mainly related to organic growth and renewals on acquired loans that are moved to our non-acquired loan portfolio. The acquired loan portfolio decreased by $695.1 million from the balance on DecemberÂ 31, 2023, through principal paydowns, charge-offs, foreclosures and renewals of acquired loans. Our investment securities portfolio (excluding trading securities) decreased by approximately $415.6 million compared to the balance at DecemberÂ 31, 2023. The decrease in investment securities from DecemberÂ 31, 2023, was a result of maturities, calls, sales and paydowns of investment securities totaling $464.1 million, a reduction from the net amortization of premiums of $9.7 million, and a decrease in the market value of the available for sale investment securities portfolio of $49.7 million. This decrease was partially offset by purchases of available for sale investment securities totaling $13.0 million and other investment securities of $95.0 million. There were no purchases of held to maturity securities during 2024. The purchases of other investment securities were related to capital stock with the Federal Home Loan Bank of which we sold back $85.5 million during 2024. The activity in the purchases and sales of the Federal Home Loan Bank Capital Stock was due to activity with FHLB borrowings during the year. The Bank pledges a portion of its investment portfolio for a variety of purposes, including, but not limited to, collateral for public funds and credit with the Federal Home Loan Bank of Atlanta. As of June 30, 2024, the bank pledged 41.2% of the market value of its available-for-sale and held-to-maturity investment portfolios. As of June 30, 2024, the Bank had unpledged securities with a market value of $3.8 billion. These securities included Treasury, Agency, Agency MBS, Municipals and Corporate securities. â€‹Total cash and cash equivalents were $1.1 billion at June 30, 2024, as compared to $1.0 billion at DecemberÂ 31, 2023. Liquidity has tightened starting in 2023 with the rising rate environment and turmoil in the financial markets occurring in early 2023. Competition for in-market deposits has increased throughout 2023 and 2024 resulting in increases in deposit rates to retain local deposits. The Bank supplements its in-market deposits with brokered deposits. While the Bank has a policy limit for brokered time deposits of no more than 15% of total deposits, it has operated well below this policy limit. At June 30, 2024, the percentage of brokered time deposits to total deposits was 2.7% compared to 1.9% at DecemberÂ 31, 2023. During the second quarter of 2024, the Company also borrowed funds from the FHLB on a short-term basis of $300.0 million. The outstanding borrowings from the FHLB were $100.0 million at December 31, 2023. See below for further discussion around brokered deposits and FHLB borrowings.â€‹Our ongoing philosophy is to remain in a liquid position, as reflected by such indicators as the composition of our earning assets, typically including some level of reverse repurchase agreements; federal funds sold; balances at the Federal Reserve Bank; and/or other short-term investments; asset quality; well-capitalized position; and profitable operating results. Cyclical and other economic trends and conditions can disrupt our desired liquidity position at any time. We expect that these conditions would generally be of a short-term nature. Under such circumstances, we expect our reverse repurchase agreements and federal funds sold positions, or balances at the Federal Reserve Bank, if any, to serve as the primary source of immediate liquidity. We could draw on additional alternative immediate funding sources from lines of credit extended to us from our correspondent banks. The Bank may also access funds from borrowing facilities established with the Federal Home Loan Bank of Atlanta and the discount window of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta. â€‹Deposit flows are significantly influenced by general and local economic conditions, changes in prevailing interest rates, internal pricing decisions and competition. Our deposits are primarily obtained from depositors located around our branch footprint, and we believe that we have attractive opportunities to capture additional retail and commercial deposits in our markets, in addition to having access to brokered deposits. Of the $37.1 billion in total deposits at June 30, 2024, approximately 70% were insured or collateralized. The Bank has a granular deposit base comprised ofÂ over approximately 1.4 million accounts, with an average deposit size of $27,000. The top ten and twenty deposit relationships comprise approximately 3% and 4% of total deposits, respectively, and approximately 28% of totalÂ deposits are non-interest bearing. The Bankâ€™s deposit beta, which represents the change in the Bankâ€™s cost of deposits over the change in the federal funds target rate, during this cycle (from March 2022 through June 2024) is approximately 34%.â€‹â€‹73 Table of ContentsÂ At June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, we had $991.4 million and $719.7 million of traditional, outâ€“ofâ€“market brokered time deposits, respectively.Â At June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, we had $2.3 billion and $2.2 billion, respectively, of reciprocal deposits. Total deposits were $37.1 billion at June 30, 2024, an increase of $49.5 million from $37.0 billion at DecemberÂ 31, 2023. This change in deposits from DecemberÂ 31, 2023, was driven by an increase in money market accounts of $583.7 million, including $189.7 million in reciprocal insured money market deposits and in time deposits of $329.1 million. This increase was partially offset by declines in interest-bearing checking accounts of $431.4 million and savings deposits of $157.1 million. As customers moved funds from noninterest-bearing deposits, interest-bearing checking and savings accounts, seeking higher yields in the rising rate environment, the Company has seen an increase in its balance of higher yielding money market accounts and time deposits during the first quarter of 2024. The Company raised interest rates on most interest-bearing deposit products (in particular money market accounts and time deposit specials) due to competitive pressures to retain deposits.â€‹Total short-term borrowings at June 30, 2024, were $542.4 million, consisting of $288.0 million in federal funds purchased and $254.4 million in securities sold under agreements to repurchase. The Company also held $300.0 million is short term daily rate FHLB advances at June 30, 2024. Total long-term borrowing at June 30, 2024, were $391.7 million and consisted of trust preferred securities and subordinated debentures. To the extent that we employ other types of non-deposit funding sources, typically to accommodate retail and correspondent customers, we continue to take in shorter maturities of such funds. Our current approach may provide an opportunity to sustain a low funding rate or possibly lower our cost of funds but could also increase our cost of funds if interest rates rise.â€‹In addition to deposits, we have other primary contingency funding sources available to the Bank. At June 30, 2024, our Bank had a total FHLB credit facility of $6.6 billion, with $300.0 million in FHLB advance outstanding and $2.9 million in FHLB letters of credit outstanding at quarter-end, leaving $6.3 billion in availability on the FHLB credit facility. In addition, our Bank had $1.8 billion of credit available at the Federal Reserve Bankâ€™s discount window and had $2.9 billion in market value of unpledged securities at June 30, 2024, that can be pledged to obtain additional funds, if necessary. All of these resources provide $12.0 billion of additional funding for the Bank. â€‹As discussed previously and presented below, the table below compares Primary Funding Sources to uninsured deposits as of June 30, 2024.â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹(DollarsÂ inÂ millions)â€‹Available Capacityâ€‹â€‹Federal Home Loan Bank of Atlantaâ€‹$ 6,255â€‹â€‹Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta Discount Windowâ€‹â€‹ 1,783â€‹â€‹Cash and cash equivalentsâ€‹â€‹ 1,117â€‹â€‹Fair value of securities that can be pledgedâ€‹â€‹ 2,865â€‹â€‹Total primary sources â€‹$ 12,020â€‹â€‹Uninsured deposits, excluding collateralized deposits â€‹$ 11,068â€‹â€‹Uninsured and collateralized deposits â€‹$ 13,224â€‹â€‹Coverage ratio, uninsured deposits â€‹â€‹108.6%â€‹Coverage ratio, uninsured and collateralized deposits â€‹â€‹90.9%â€‹Ratio of uninsured and collateralized deposits to total depositsâ€‹â€‹35.6%â€‹The Bank also has an internal limit on brokered deposits of 15% of total deposits which would allow capacity of $5.5 billion as of June 30, 2024. The Bank had $991.4 million of outstanding brokered deposits at the end of the quarter leaving $4.6 billion in available capacity. The Bank has federal funds credit lines of $300.0 million with no balances outstanding at quarter-end and the holding company has a $100.0 million unsecured line of credit with U.S. Bank National Association with no balance outstanding at June 30, 2024. We believe that our liquidity position continues to be adequate and readily available.In addition to adequate liquidity, the Company and Bank are considered well capitalized by all regulatory capital standards as the Company and the Bank were significantly above the required capital levels as of June 30, 2024. The Companyâ€™s tier 1 leverage ratio, CET 1 risk-based capital ratio and total risk-based capital ratio were 9.72%, 12.08% and 14.43%, respectively, at June 30, 2024. The Bankâ€™s Tier 1 leverage ratio, CET 1 risk-based capital ratio and total risk-based capital ratio were 10.36%, 12.89% and 14.15%, respectively, at June 30, 2024. As permitted, we elected to exclude accumulated other comprehensive income related to available for sale securities from Tier 1, CET 1 and total risk-based capital; however, even if our unrealized losses as of June 30, 2024 in our available for sale and held to maturity investment portfolios were recognized by selling the portfolios for liquidity purposes, all else being equal, our regulatory capital ratios would remain well in excess of the minimum standards and continue to be in the â€œwell capitalizedâ€ regulatory classification.74 Table of ContentsÂ Asset-Liability Management and Market Risk Sensitivityâ€‹Our earnings and the economic value of equity vary in relation to the behavior of interest rates and the accompanying fluctuations in market prices of certain of our financial instruments. We define interest rate risk as the risk to earnings and equity arising from the behavior of interest rates. These behaviors include increases and decreases in interest rates as well as continuation of the current interest rate environment.â€‹Our interest rate risk principally consists of reprice, option, basis, and yield curve risk. Reprice risk results from differences in the maturity or repricing characteristics of asset and liability portfolios. Option risk arises from embedded options in the investment and loan portfolios such as investment securities calls and loan prepayment options. Option risk also exists since deposit customers may withdraw funds at their discretion in response to general market conditions, competitive alternatives to existing accounts or other factors. The exercise of such options may result in higher costs or lower revenue. Basis risk refers to the potential for changes in the underlying relationship between market rates or indices, which subsequently result in narrowing spreads on interest-earning assets and interest-bearing liabilities. Basis risk also exists in administered rate liabilities, such as interest-bearing checking accounts, savings accounts, and money market accounts where the price sensitivity of such products may vary relative to general markets rates. Yield curve risk refers to adverse consequences of nonparallel shifts in the yield curves of various market indices that impact our assets and liabilities.â€‹We use simulation analysis as a primary method to assess earnings at risk and equity at risk due to assumed changes in interest rates. Management uses the results of its various simulation analyses in combination with other data and observations to formulate strategies designed to maintain interest rate risk within risk tolerances. â€‹Simulation analysis involves the use of several assumptions including, but not limited to, the timing of cash flows such as the terms of contractual agreements, investment security calls, loan prepayment speeds, deposit attrition rates, the interest rate sensitivity of loans and deposits relative to general market rates, and the behavior of interest rates and spreads. The assumptions for loan prepayments, deposit decay, and nonstable deposit balances are derived from models that use historical bank data. These models are independently validated. Equity at risk simulation uses assumptions regarding discount rates that value cash flows. Simulation analysis is highly dependent on model assumptions that may vary from actual outcomes. Key simulation assumptions are subject to sensitivity analysis to assess the impact of assumption changes on earnings at risk and equity at risk. Model assumptions are reviewed by our Assumptions Committee. While the Bank is continuously refining its modeling methodology, the core principles of the methodology have remained stable over the past two years. Earnings at risk is defined as the percentage change in net interest income due to assumed changes in interest rates. Earnings at risk is generally used to assess interest rate risk over relatively short time horizons.Equity at risk is defined as the percentage change in the net economic value of assets and liabilities due to changes in interest rates compared to a base net economic value. The discounted present value of all cash flows represents our economic value of equity. Equity at risk is generally considered a measure of the long-term interest rate exposures of the balance sheet at a point in time.The earnings simulation models consider our contractual agreements with regard to investments, loans, deposits, borrowings, and derivatives as well as a number of behavioral assumptions applied to certain assets and liabilities. Mortgage banking derivatives used in the ordinary course of business consist of forward sales contracts and interest rate lock commitments on residential mortgage loans. These derivatives involve underlying items, such as interest rates, and are designed to mitigate risk. Derivatives are also used to hedge mortgage servicing rights. For additional information see Note 16 â€” Derivative Financial Instruments in the consolidated financial statements.â€‹75 Table of ContentsÂ From time to time, we execute interest rate swaps to hedge some of our interest rate risks. Under these arrangements, the Company enters into a variable rate loan with a client in addition to a swap agreement. The swap agreement effectively converts the clientâ€™s variable rate loan into a fixed rate loan. The Company then enters into a matching swap agreement with a third-party dealer to offset its exposure on the customer swap. The Company may also execute interest rate swap agreements that are not specific to client loans. As of June 30, 2024, the Company had a series of short-term interest rate hedges to address monthly accrual mismatches related to the Companyâ€™s ARC program and its transition from LIBOR to SOFR after June 30, 2023. For additional information on these derivatives refer to Note 16 â€” Derivative Financial Instruments in the consolidated financial statements. Our interest rate risk key indicators are applied to a static balance sheet using forward rates from the Moodyâ€™s Baseline Scenario. The Company will also use other rate forecasts, including, but not limited to, Moodyâ€™s Consensus Scenario. This Base Case Scenario assumes the maturity composition of asset and liability rollover volumes is modeled to approximately replicate current consolidated balance sheet characteristics throughout the simulation. These treatments are consistent with the Companyâ€™s goal of assessing current interest rate risk embedded in its current balance sheet. The Base Case Scenario assumes that maturing or repricing assets and liabilities are replaced at prices referencing forward rates derived from the selected rate forecast consistent with current balance sheet pricing characteristics. Key rate drivers are used to price assets and liabilities with sensitivity assumptions used to price non-maturity deposits. The sensitivity assumptions for the pricing of non-maturity deposits are subjected to sensitivity analysis no less frequently than on an annual basis. Interest rate shocks are applied to the Base Case on an instantaneous basis. Our policy establishes the use of upward and downward interest rate shocks applied in 100 basis point increments through 400 basis points. We calculate smaller rate shocks as needed. At times, market conditions may result in assumed rate movements that will be deemphasized. For example, during a period of ultra-low interest rates, certain downward rate shocks may be impractical. The model simulation results produced from the Base Case Scenario and related instantaneous shocks for changes in net interest income and changes in the economic value of equity are referred to as the Core Scenario Analysis and constitute the policy key risk indicators for interest rate risk when compared to risk tolerances. As of June 30, 2024, the Company was operating within its interest rate key risk indicator policy limits.During 2023 and the first half of 2024, the beta assumption applied to total deposits increased to reflect changes in deposit mix. From the beginning of the upward rate cycle, our deposit costs have increased from five basis points to one hundred and seventy-four basis points. During this period, the federal funds rate has increased 525 basis points. Accordingly, our cycle to date beta has been approximately 34%. Management recognizes the difficulty in using historical data to forecast deposit betas in the current environment. For internal purposes, and based on the deposit mix as of June 30, 2024, the total deposit beta assumption was 34.5%. For internal forecasting, management will apply overlays to certain assumptions to adjust for current market conditions rather than use assumptions modeled over longer periods of time.â€‹The following interest rate risk metrics are derived from analysis using the Moodyâ€™s Baseline Scenario published in July 2024 as the Base Case Scenario. As of June 30, 2024, the earnings simulations indicated that the year 1 impact of an instantaneous 100 basis point parallel increase / decrease in rates would result in an estimated 0.9% increase (up 100) and 1.6% decrease (down 100) in net interest income. â€‹We use Economic Value of Equity (â€œEVEâ€) analysis as an indicator of the extent to which the present value of our capital could change, given potential changes in interest rates. This measure also assumes a static balance sheet (Base Case Scenario) with rate shocks applied as described above. At June 30, 2024, the percentage change in EVE due to a 100-basis point increase or decrease in interest rates was 2.5% decrease and 0.9% increase, respectively. The percentage changes in EVE due to a 200-basis point increase or decrease in interest rates were 6.1% decrease and 0.2% decrease, respectively. The interest rate shock analysis results for EVE sensitivities are unusual as the benefits of repricing assets are mitigated by increasing deposit costs, and downward shocks are constrained on various balance sheet categories due to the inability to price products below floors or zero. This is particularly meaningful given the cost of deposits as of June 30, 2024.â€‹â€‹76 Table of ContentsÂ The analysis below reflects a Base Case and shocked scenarios that assume a static balance sheet projection where volume is added to maintain balances consistent with current levels. Base Case assumes new and repricing volumes reference forward rates derived from the Moodyâ€™s Baseline rate forecast. Instantaneous, parallel, and sustained interest rate shocks are applied to the Base Case scenario over a one-year time horizon. â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹Percentage Change in Net Interest Income over One Yearâ€‹Up 100 basis pointsâ€‹ 0.9%â€‹Up 200 basis pointsâ€‹ 1.5%â€‹Up 300 basis pointsâ€‹ 1.7%â€‹Up 400 basis pointsâ€‹ 1.7%â€‹Down 100 basis pointsâ€‹ (1.6)%â€‹Down 200 basis pointsâ€‹ (4.3)%â€‹Down 300 basis pointsâ€‹ (8.3)%â€‹Down 400 basis pointsâ€‹ (12.5)%â€‹Deposit Concentrationsâ€‹As of June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, we have no material concentration of deposits from any single customer or group of customers. We have no significant portion of our deposits concentrated within a single industry or group of related industries. We do not believe there are any material seasonal factors that would have a material adverse effect on us. The total deposit balances held by top ten and 20 deposit holders were below 5% of the Companyâ€™s average total deposit balances at June 30, 2024. We do not have any foreign deposits.Concentration of Credit Riskâ€‹Each category of earning assets has a certain degree of credit risk. We use various techniques to measure credit risk. Credit risk in the investment portfolio can be measured through bond ratings published by independent agencies. In the investment securities portfolio, the investments consist of U.S. government-sponsored entity securities, tax-free securities, or other securities having ratings of â€œAAAâ€ to â€œNot Ratedâ€. All securities, with the exception of those that are not rated, were rated by at least one of the nationally recognized statistical rating organizations. The credit risk of the loan portfolio can be measured by historical experience. We maintain our loan portfolio in accordance with credit policies that we have established. Although the Bank has a diversified loan portfolio, a substantial portion of our borrowersâ€™ abilities to honor their contracts is dependent upon economic conditions within our geographic footprint and the surrounding regions.We consider concentrations of credit to exist when, pursuant to regulatory guidelines, the amounts loaned to a multiple number of borrowers engaged in similar business activities which would cause them to be similarly impacted by general economic conditions represents 25% of total Tier 1 capital plus regulatory adjusted allowance for credit losses of the Company, or $1.2 billion at June 30, 2024. Based on this criteria, we had seven such credit concentrations at June 30, 2024, including loans to lessors of nonresidential buildings (except mini-warehouses) of $6.1 billion, loans secured by owner-occupied office buildings (including medical office buildings) of $1.9 billion, loans secured by owner-occupied nonresidential buildings (excluding office buildings) of $1.8 billion, loans to lessors of residential buildings (investment properties and multi-family) of $2.7 billion, loans secured by 1st mortgage 1-4 family owner-occupied residential property (including condos and home equity lines) of $9.4 billion, loans secured by jumbo (original loans greater than $548,250) of $2.6 billion, and loans secured by business assets including accounts receivable, inventory and equipment of $2.4 billion. The risk for these loans and for all loans is managed collectively through the use of credit underwriting practices developed and updated over time. The loss estimate for these loans is determined using our standard ACL methodology.â€‹77 Table of ContentsÂ After the adoption of CECL in the first quarter of 2020, banking regulators established guidelines for calculating credit concentrations. Banking regulators set the guidelines for construction, land development and other land loans to total less than 100% of total Tier 1 capital less modified CECL transitional amount plus ACL (CDL concentration ratio) and for total commercial real estate loans (construction, land development and other land loans along with other non-owner-occupied commercial real estate and multifamily loans) to total less than 300% of total Tier 1 capital less modified CECL transitional amount plus ACL (CRE concentration ratio). Both ratios are calculated by dividing certain types of loan balances for each of the two categories by the Bankâ€™s total Tier 1 capital less modified CECL transitional amount plus ACL. At June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, the Bankâ€™s CDL concentration ratio was 50.6% and 59.7%, respectively, and its CRE concentration ratio was 231.0% and 236.5%, respectively. As of June 30, 2024, the Bank was below the established regulatory guidelines. When a bankâ€™s ratios are in excess of one or both of these loan concentration ratios guidelines, banking regulators generally require an increased level of monitoring in these lending areas by bank management. Therefore, we monitor these two ratios as part of our concentration management processes.Reconciliation of GAAP to Non-GAAPâ€‹The return on average tangible equity is a non-GAAP financial measure that excludes the effect of the average balance of intangible assets and adds back the after-tax amortization of intangibles to GAAP basis net income. Management believes these non-GAAP financial measures provide additional information that is useful to investors in evaluating our performance and capital and may facilitate comparisons with other institutions in the banking industry as well as period-to-period comparisons. Non-GAAP measures should not be considered as an alternative to any measure of performance or financial condition as promulgated under GAAP, and investors should consider the Companyâ€™s performance and financial condition as reported under GAAP and all other relevant information when assessing the performance or financial condition of the Company. Non-GAAP measures have limitations as analytical tools, are not audited, and may not be comparable to other similarly titled financial measures used by other companies. Investors should not consider non-GAAP measures in isolation or as a substitute for analysis of the Companyâ€™s results or financial condition as reported under GAAP.â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹

SEC.â€‹The Company is providing this additional risk factor to supplement the risk factors contained in Item 1A. of our Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended DecemberÂ 31, 2023.â€‹We may face risks with respect to future expansion, including our proposed acquisition of Independent.â€‹Our business growth, profitability and market share have been enhanced by us engaging in strategic mergers and acquisitions and de novo branching either within or contiguous to our existing footprint. We have entered into a Merger Agreement with Independent, and we may acquire other financial institutions or parts of those institutions in the future and engage in additional de novo branching. We may also consider and enter into or acquire new lines of business or offer new products or services. As part of our acquisition strategy, we seek companies that are culturally similar to us, have experienced management and are in markets in which we operate or close to those markets so we can achieve economies of scale. We also may receive future inquiries and have discussions with potential acquirers of us or potential companies in which we may engage in a so-called â€œmerger of equals.â€ Acquisitions and mergers, including our proposed acquisition of Independent, involve a number of risks, including:â€‹â—the time and costs associated with identifying and evaluating potential acquisitions and merger partners; â—inaccurate estimates and judgments regarding credit, operations, management and market risks of the target institution;â—the time and costs of evaluating new markets, hiring experienced local management and opening new offices, and the time lags between these activities and the generation of sufficient assets and deposits to support the costs of the expansion;â—our ability to receive regulatory approvals on the timeline and terms that are acceptable to us;â—the adverse consequences (including applicable termination fees and negative reactions from the financial markets and our customers and employees) we may experience if a merger is terminated under certain circumstances;â—the business uncertainties and contractual restrictions while a merger is pending;â—the limitation on our ability to pursue alternative acquisitions and mergers and the hinderance of other companiesâ€™ interest in trying to acquire us;â—our potential inability to satisfy certain conditions to the merger, including approval by our shareholders;â—our ability to finance an acquisition and possible dilution to our existing shareholders;â—our ability to manage the expanded business and operations post-merger;â—the diversion of our managementâ€™s attention to the negotiation of a transaction, and the integration of the operations and personnel of the combining businesses;â—entry into new markets where we lack experience;â—the strain of growth on our infrastructure, staff, internal controls and management, which may require additional personnel, time and expenditures;82 Table of ContentsÂ â—exposure to potential asset quality issues with acquired institutions;â—the introduction of new products and services into our business;â—the possibility of unknown or contingent liabilities;â—the incurrence and possible impairment of goodwill associated with an acquisition and possible adverse short-term effects on our results of operations; â—the risk of loss of key employees and customers; andâ—fluctuations in the market price of SouthState common stock pre- and post-merger.We also face litigation risks with respect to potential mergers and acquisitions, and such litigation is common.â€‹We expect to continue to evaluate merger and acquisition opportunities that are presented to us in our current and expected markets and conduct due diligence related to those opportunities, as well as negotiate to acquire or merge with other institutions. If we announce a transaction, we may issue equity securities, including common stock and securities convertible into shares of our common stock in connection with future acquisitions. As a result, holders of our common stock may have a reduced ownership and voting interest in the Company after a transaction and may exercise less influence over management.â€‹We also may issue debt to finance one or more transactions, including subordinated debt issuances. Generally, acquisitions of financial institution involve the payment of a premium over book and market values, resulting in dilution of our book value and fully diluted earnings per share, as well as dilution to our existing shareholders. We may incur substantial costs to expand, and we can give no assurance such expansion will result in the levels of profits we seek. There is no assurance that, following any future mergers or acquisitions, including our proposed acquisition of Independent, that our integration efforts will be successful or our Company, after giving effect to the acquisition, will achieve increased revenues comparable to or better than our historical experience, and failure to realize such expected revenue increases, cost savings, increases in market presence or other benefits could have a material adverse effect on our financial conditions and results of operations.â€‹We may not be able to successfully integrate Independent or to realize the anticipated benefits of the merger with Independent.â€‹We entered into a Merger Agreement with Independent on May 17, 2024. If the proposed acquisition of Independent is completed, we will also integrate the systems and operations of Independent.â€‹A successful integration of Independentâ€™s operations with our operations so that the Company operates as one entity depends substantially on our ability to successfully consolidate operations, management teams, corporate cultures, systems and procedures and to eliminate redundancies and costs. While we have substantial experience in successfully integrating institutions we have acquired, we may encounter difficulties during integration, such as:â€‹â—the loss of key employees and customers;â—the disruption of operations and businesses;â—inability to maintain and increase competitive presence;â—loan, deposit, and revenue attrition;â—inconsistencies in standards, control procedures and policies;â—unexpected issues with costs, operations, personnel, and technology; andâ—problems with the assimilation of new operations, sites or personnel.Integration activities could divert resources from regular operations. In addition, general market and economic conditions, governmental actions, natural and human disasters or other international or domestic calamities affecting the financial industry generally may inhibit the Companyâ€™s successful integration of these Independent. In connection with the proposed acquisition of Independent, we will assume Independentâ€™s outstanding debt obligations, and the surviving corporationâ€™s level of indebtedness following the completion of the merger could adversely affect the Companyâ€™s ability to raise additional capital and to meet its obligations under existing indebtedness.â€‹â€‹83 Table of ContentsÂ In addition, we have proposed to acquire Independent with the expectation that this merger will result in various benefits including, among other things, benefits relating to enhanced revenues, a strengthened and expanded market position for the combined company, technology efficiencies, cost savings and operating efficiencies. Achieving the anticipated benefits of these mergers is subject to a number of uncertainties, including whether we integrate the institution in an efficient and effective manner, and general competitive factors in the marketplace. Failure to achieve these anticipated benefits could result in a reduction in the price of our shares as well as in increased costs, decreases in the amount of expected revenues and diversion of management's time and energy and could materially and adversely affect the Companyâ€™s financial condition, results of operations, business and prospects.Item 2. We continue to update and expand our qualitative framework to further address factors not captured in the quantitative process.â€‹Loansâ€‹Loans that management has originated and has the intent and ability to hold for the foreseeable future or until maturity or pay off generally are reported at their unpaid principal balances, less unearned income and net of any deferred loan fees and costs, including unamortized fair value discount or premium. Unearned income on installment loans is recognized as income over the terms of the loans by methods that generally approximate the interest method. Interest on other loans is calculated by using the simple interest method on daily balances of the principal amount outstanding. If the loan is prepaid, the remaining unamortized fees and costs are charged or credited to interest income. Amortization ceases for non-accrual loans.â€‹We place loans on nonaccrual once reasonable doubt exists about the collectability of all principal and interest due. Generally, this occurs when principal or interest is 90 days or more past due, unless the loan is well secured and in the process of collection and excludes factored receivables. For factored receivables, which are commercial trade credits rather than promissory notes, the Companyâ€™s practice, in most cases, is to charge-off unpaid recourse receivables when they become 90 days past due from the invoice due date and the non-recourse receivables when they become 120 days past due from the statement due date. Past due status is based on the contractual terms of the loan. In all cases, loans are placed on non-accrual or charged-off at an earlier date if collection of principal or interest is considered doubtful.â€‹â€‹â€‹A loan is evaluated individually for loss when it is on nonaccrual and has a net book balance over $1 million. Large pools of homogeneous loans are collectively evaluated for loss and reserved at the pool level. Loans that experience insignificant payment delays and payment shortfalls generally are not classified as nonaccrual, provided that management expects to collect all amounts due, including interest accrued at the contractual interest rate for the period of delay.Allowance for Credit Losses (â€œACLâ€) â€" Investment Securitiesâ€‹Management monitors the held to maturity securities portfolio to determine whether a valuation account should be recorded. Management evaluates impairment where there has been a decline in fair value below the amortized cost basis of a security to determine whether there is a credit loss associated with the decline in fair value at least quarterly, and more frequently when economic or market concerns warrant such evaluation. The Companyâ€™s methodology on how the ACL is calculated is disclosed in Note 1 â€" Summary of Significant Accounting Policies, under the â€œACL â€" Investment Securitiesâ€ section, of our Annual Report for the year ended DecemberÂ 31, 2023. As of June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, the Company had $2.4 billion and $2.5 billion, respectively, of held to maturity securities and no related valuation account.The Company follows its nonaccrual policy by reversing interest income in the income statement when the Company determines the interest for held to maturity securities is uncollectible. Therefore, management excludes the accrued interest receivable balance from the amortized cost basis in measuring expected credit losses on the investment securities and does not record an allowance for credit losses on accrued interest receivable. As of June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, the accrued interest receivables for all investment securities recorded in Other Assets were $25.8 million and $26.5 million, respectively.ACL â€" Loans and Certain Off-Balance-Sheet Credit Exposures The ACL for loans held for investment reflects managementâ€™s estimate of credit losses that will result from the inability of our borrowers to make required loan payments. The Company makes adjustments to the ACL by recording a provision for or recovery of credit losses through earnings. Loans charged off are recorded as reductions to the ACL on the balance sheet and subsequent recoveries of loan charge-offs are recorded as increases to the ACL when they are received.â€‹Management estimates the allowance balance using relevant available information, from internal and external sources, relating to past events, current conditions, and reasonable and supportable forecasts. Historical credit loss experience provides the basis for the estimation of expected credit losses. Adjustments to historical loss information are made for differences in current loan-specific risk characteristics such as differences in underwriting standards, portfolio mix, credit quality, or term, as well as for changes in macroeconomic conditions, such as changes in unemployment rates, gross domestic product, property values, or other relevant factors. The Companyâ€™s estimate of its ACL involves a high degree of judgment; therefore, managementâ€™s process for determining expected losses may result in a range of expected losses. The Companyâ€™s ACL recorded in the balance sheet reflects managementâ€™s best estimate within the range of expected losses. The Company recognizes in net income the amount needed to adjust the ACL for managementâ€™s current estimate of expected losses.â€‹The Company generally uses an eight-quarter forecast period, based on a single forecast scenario or a blend of multiple forecast scenarios, using variables management believes are most relevant to each portfolio segment. For periods beyond which management is able to develop reasonable and supportable forecasts, the Company reverts to the average historical loss rate, reflecting historical default probabilities and loss severities, using a reversion speed that approximates four quarters. The forecast period and scenarios used are reviewed on a quarterly basis and may be adjusted based on management's view of the current economic conditions and level of predictability the forecast can provide. â€‹â€‹While quantitative allowance methodologies strive to reflect all risk factors, any estimate involves assumptions and uncertainties resulting in some level of imprecision. Imprecision exists in the estimation process due to the inherent time lag between obtaining information, performing the calculation, as well as variations between estimates and actual outcomes. As a result, amounts determined under the methodologies described above are adjusted by management to consider the potential impact of other qualitative factors not captured in the quantitative model adjustments which include, but are not limited to, the following: imprecision or conditions not captured in economic scenario assumptions, emerging risks related to either changes in the internal or external environment that are affecting specific portfolios, trends in loan or portfolio level credit metrics not captured in quantitative modeling, or model imprecision adjustments. The consideration of these items results in adjustments to allowance amounts included in the Companyâ€™s allowance for credit losses for each loan portfolio.â€‹The Companyâ€™s ACL is calculated using collectively evaluated and individually evaluated loans. Even though portions of the allowance may be allocated to specific loans or pools of loans, the entire allowance is available for any credit that, in managementâ€™s judgment, should be charged off.â€‹Management measures expected credit losses over the contractual term of a loan. When determining the contractual term, the Company considers expected prepayments but is precluded from considering expected extensions, renewals, or modifications. Loans modified to a borrower experiencing financial difficulty are reviewed by the Bank to determine if an interest rate reduction, a term extension, an other-than-insignificant payment delay, a principal forgiveness, or any combination of these has occurred.â€‹The ACL includes expected losses from modifications of receivables to borrowers experiencing financial difficulty. Losses on modifications of non-accrual loans over $1 million to borrowers experiencing financial difficulty are estimated on an individual basis. Because the effect of the remainder of modifications made to borrowers experiencing financial difficulty is already incorporated into the measurement methodologies used to estimate the allowance, they are accounted for as pooled loans.â€‹For purchased credit-deteriorated, otherwise referred to herein as PCD, assets are defined as acquired individual financial assets (or acquired groups of financial assets with similar risk characteristics) that, as of the date of acquisition, have experienced a more-than-insignificant deterioration in credit quality since origination, as determined by the Companyâ€™s assessment. The Company records acquired PCD loans by adding the expected credit losses (i.e., allowance for credit losses) to the purchase price of the financial assets rather than recording through the provision for credit losses in the income statement. The expected credit loss, as of the acquisition day, of a PCD loan is added to the allowance for credit losses. The non-credit discount or premium is the difference between the unpaid principal balance and the amortized cost basis as of the acquisition date. Subsequent to the acquisition date, the change in the ACL on PCD loans is recognized through the Provision for Credit Losses in the Consolidated Statements of Income. The non-credit discount or premium is accreted or amortized, respectively, into interest income over the remaining life of the PCD loan on a level-yield basis.â€‹The Company follows its nonaccrual policy by reversing contractual interest income in the income statement when the Company places a loan on nonaccrual status. Therefore, management excludes the accrued interest receivable balance from the amortized cost basis in measuring expected credit losses on the portfolio and does not record an allowance for credit losses on accrued interest receivable. As of June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, the accrued interest receivables for loans recorded in Other Assets were $132.7 million and $127.0 million, respectively. â€‹The Company has a variety of assets that have a component that qualifies as an off-balance sheet exposure. These primarily include undrawn portions of revolving lines of credit and standby letters of credit. The expected losses associated with these exposures within the unfunded portion of the expected credit loss are recorded as a liability on the balance sheet. Management has determined that a majority of the Companyâ€™s off-balance sheet credit exposures are not unconditionally cancellable.

Management completes funding studies based on internal historical data to estimate the percentage of unfunded loan commitments that will ultimately be funded to calculate the reserve for unfunded commitments. management applies this funding rate, along with the loss factor rate determined for each pooled loan segment, to unfunded loan commitments, excluding unconditionally cancellable exposures and letters of credit, to arrive at the reserve for unfunded loan commitments. As of June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, the liabilities recorded for expected credit losses on unfunded commitments were $50.2 million and $56.3 million, respectively. The current adjustment to the reserve for unfunded commitments is recognized through the Provision for Credit Losses in the Consolidated Statements of Income.The methodology used in the estimation of the allowance, which is performed at least quarterly, is designed to be dynamic and responsive to changes in portfolio credit quality and forecasted economic conditions. Changes are reflected in the pool-basis allowance and in reserves assigned on an individual basis as the collectability of classified loans is evaluated with new information. As the Companyâ€™s portfolio has matured, historical loss ratios have been closely monitored. The review of the appropriateness of the allowance is performed by executive management and presented to the Audit and Risk Committees of the Board of Directors for their review. The committees report to the board as part of the board's quarterly review of the Companyâ€™s consolidated financial statements.â€‹Reclassification and Correctionâ€‹Certain amounts previously reported have been reclassified to conform to the current quarterâ€™s presentation. The amendments in this update allow the option for an entity to apply the proportional amortization method of accounting to other equity investments, in addition to the previously permitted low-income housing tax credit (â€œLIHTCâ€) structured investments, that are made for the primary purpose of receiving tax credits or other income tax benefits, if certain conditions are met. The proportional amortization method of accounting results in the amortization of applicable investments, as well as the related income tax credits or other income tax benefits received, being presented on a single line within income tax expense on the consolidated statements of income. Prior to this update, the application of the proportional amortization method of accounting was limited to LIHTC structured investments. Under this update, an entity has the option to apply the proportional amortization method of accounting to applicable investments on a tax-credit-program-by-tax-credit-program basis. Also under this update, LIHTC structured investments for which the proportional amortization method is not applied can no longer be accounted for using the delayed equity contribution guidance. The amendments in this update also require additional disclosures in interim and annual periods concerning investments for which the proportional amortization method is applied, including the nature of tax equity investments, the effect of tax equity investments and related income tax credits and other income tax benefits on the financial position and results of operations.â€‹The Company adopted ASU 2023-02 effective January 1, 2024, and changed the accounting method of its LIHTC structured investments from the equity method to the proportional amortization method. The Company adopted ASU 2023-02 using the modified retrospective approach. Under this adoption approach, management was required to verify the LIHTCs met the conditions for proportional amortization method as of the date the investments were originally made by the Bank. In addition, management evaluated the actual tax credits and other income tax benefits received, as well as the remaining benefits expected to be received, as of the adoption date. The cumulative difference between the equity method and proportional amortization method resulted in a one-time cumulative effect adjustment recorded through retained earnings as of January 1, 2024. The cumulative effect resulting from the adoption of proportional amortization method was a net reduction to retained earnings of $9.4 million, which reflects the amortization expense in proportion to the tax credits and benefits realized on a life-to-date basis of all LIHTCs as of December 31, 2023. Additionally, the proportional amortization method does not require deferred taxes be tracked as was the case with the equity method; therefore, deferred taxes of $836,000Â were written-off as an additional reduction to retained earnings effective January 1, 2024. â€‹â€‹Issued But Not Yet Adopted Accounting Standardsâ€‹In November 2023, the FASB issued ASU No. 2023-07,Â Segment Reporting (Topic 280): Improvements to Reportable Segment Disclosures, to improve disclosures about a public entityâ€™s reportable segments and address requests from investors and other allocators of capital for additional, more detailed information about a reportable segmentâ€™s expenses. Segment information gives investors an understanding of overall performance and is key to assessing potential future cash flows. In addition, although information about a segmentâ€™s revenue and measure of profit or loss is disclosed in an entityâ€™s financial statements, there is limited information disclosed about a segmentâ€™s expenses. The key amendments include annual and interim disclosures of significant expenses and other segment items that are regularly provided to the chief operating decision maker and included within each reported measure of profit or loss, as well as any other key measure of performance used for segment management decisions. This ASU also requires disclosure of key profitability measures used in assessing performance and how to allocate resources. The amendments in this ASU are effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2023, and for interim periods within fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2024, with early adoption permitted. The Company does not anticipate this ASU will have a material impact on its financial statements.â€‹In December 2023, the FASB issued ASU No. 2023-09,Â Income Taxes (Topic 740): Improvements to Income Tax Disclosures, which aims to address requests for improved income tax disclosures from investors, lenders, creditors and other allocators of capital (collectively, â€œinvestorsâ€) that use the financial statements to make capital allocation decisions. The amendments in this ASU address investor requests for more transparency about income tax information, including jurisdictional information, by requiring consistent categories and greater disaggregation of information in both the rate reconciliation and income taxes paid disaggregated by jurisdiction. The amendments are effective for annual periods beginning after December 15, 2024. The Company does not anticipate this ASU will have a material impact on its financial statements. The commitments and contingent liabilities include guarantees, commitments to extend credit, and standby letters of credit. At June 30, 2024, commitments to extend credit and standby letters of credit totaled $9.2 billion. As of June 30, 2024, the liability recorded for expected credit losses on unfunded commitments, excluding unconditionally cancellable exposures and letters of credit, was $50.2 million and recorded on the Balance Sheet. See Note 2 â€” Summary of Significant Accounting Policies for discussion of liability recorded for expected credit losses on unfunded commitments.â€‹We have been named as defendant in various legal actions, arising from its normal business activities, in which damages in various amounts are claimed. We are also exposed to litigation risk related to the prior business activities of banks acquired through whole bank acquisitions. Although the amount of any ultimate liability with respect to such matters cannot be determined, in the opinion of management, as of June 30, 2024, any such liability is not expected to have a material effect on our consolidated financial statements. â€‹In response to the bank failures in early 2023, the FDIC implemented a special assessment to recover the losses to the FDICâ€™s Deposit Insurance Fund at an annual rate of approximately 13.4 basis points over eight quarterly assessment periods beginning with the first quarterly assessment period of 2024. The base for the special assessment is equal to an insured depository institutionâ€™s estimated uninsured deposits reported as of December 31, 2022, adjusted to exclude the first $5 billion. As a result, approximately $25.7 million was recognized by the Bank as of December 31, 2023, for the two-year special assessment period. Due to additional losses to the Deposit Insurance Fund resulting from the 2023 bank failures reported by the FDIC in February 2024, an additional $4.5 million was accrued by the Bank during 2024, bringing the total estimated FDIC special assessment allocable to the Bank to approximately $30.2 million. The additional $4.5 million will be paid over two quarters after the initial two-year assessment period. The FDIC may impose additional special assessments from time to time based on the actual losses incurred by the FDIC as a result of the March 2023 bank failures or future failures.â€‹Cyber Incident Litigation. Â On April 3, 2024, a putative class action lawsuit was filed against the Bank in the U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Florida, Tampa Division (the â€œOriginal Suitâ€). The plaintiff, who purports to represent the class of individuals harmed by alleged actions and/or omissions by the Bank in connection with the cybersecurity incident that was detected on February 6, 2024 (the â€œCyber Incidentâ€), asserts a variety of common law and statutory claims seeking monetary damages, injunctive relief and other related relief related to the potential unauthorized access by third parties to personal identifiable information. While the Original Suit has been voluntarily dismissed, additional plaintiffs have initiated litigation that names the Bank as a defendant. As of July 30, 2024, three putative class actions are pending against the Bank, including one case pending in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia, and two cases pending in the Circuit Court for Polk County, Florida. An additional case pending in the Circuit Court for Broward County, Florida, that does not seek class certification requests a declaratory judgment that the Bank leaked sensitive data belonging to the named plaintiff (each such litigation, a â€œCyber Incident Suitâ€). We anticipate that all putative class actions will be consolidated into one litigation. Â At this time, neither the Bank nor the Company is able to reasonably estimate the amount or range of reasonably possible loss, if any, that might result from the Cyber Incident Suits. However, the Bank believes that it has defenses to the claims and intends to vigorously defend against the Cyber Incident Suits. Accordingly, no amounts have been recorded in the unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements for the Cyber Incident Suits. The Company will continue to evaluate information as it becomes known and will record an estimate for losses at the time or times when it is both probable that a loss has been incurred and the amount of the loss is reasonably estimable. Additional lawsuits and claims related to the Cyber Incident may be asserted by or on behalf of customers, shareholders, or others seeking damages or other related relief and additional inquiries from governmental agencies may be received or investigations by governmental agencies commenced. Fair value should be based on the assumptions market participants would use when pricing an asset or liability and establishes a fair value hierarchy that prioritizes the information used to develop those assumptions.â€‹The Company uses fair value measurements to record fair value adjustments to certain assets and liabilities and to determine fair value disclosures. Available for sale and trading securities, derivative contracts, mortgage loans held for sale, SBA servicing rights, and mortgage servicing rights (â€œMSRsâ€) are recorded at fair value on a recurring basis. Additionally, from time to time, we may be required to record at fair value other assets on a nonrecurring basis, such as impaired loans, OREO, bank properties held for sale, and certain other assets. These nonrecurring fair value adjustments typically involve application of lower of cost or market accounting or write-downs of individual assets.â€‹FASB ASC Topic 820 establishes a three-tier fair value hierarchy which prioritizes the inputs used in measuring fair value as follows:â€‹Level 1Observable inputs such as quoted prices in active markets;Level 2Inputs, other than the quoted prices in active markets, that are observable either directly or indirectly; andLevel 3Unobservable inputs in which there is little or no market data, which require the reporting entity to develop its own assumptions.â€‹A description of valuation methodologies used for assets recorded at fair value is disclosed in Note 25 â€” Fair Value of our Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended DecemberÂ 31, 2023. â€‹Assets and Liabilities Recorded at Fair Value on a Recurring Basisâ€‹The table below presents the recorded amount of assets and liabilities measured at fair value on a recurring basis:â€‹Â Â Â Â Â QuotedÂ PricesÂ Â Â Â â€‹â€‹Â Â Â Â â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹InÂ Activeâ€‹Significantâ€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â€‹â hedges. As noted above, the derivatives protect the Company from interest rate risk caused by changes in the term and daily SOFR accrual mismatches. The fair value of these hedges is recorded in either Other Assets or in Other Liabilities depending on the position of the hedge with the offset recorded in Correspondent Banking and Capital Market Income, a component of Noninterest Income on the Consolidated Statements of Income. There was a net loss of $1,000 for these derivatives for the three and six months ended June 30, 2024. There was a net loss of $5,000 for these derivatives for the year ended December 31, 2023. â€‹Foreign Exchangeâ€‹The Company may enter into foreign exchange contracts with customers to accommodate their need to convert certain foreign currencies into U.S. Dollars. To offset the foreign exchange risk, the Company may enter into substantially identical agreements with an unrelated market counterparty to hedge these foreign exchange contracts. If there were foreign currency contracts outstanding at June 30, 2024, the fair value of these contracts would be included in Other Assets and Other Liabilities in the accompanying Consolidated Balance Sheets. All changes in fair value are recorded as other noninterest income. There was no gain or loss recorded related to the foreign exchange derivative for the three and six months ended June 30, 2024 and 2023.â€‹â€‹Mortgage Bankingâ€‹The Company also has derivatives contracts that are not classified as accounting hedges to mitigate risks related to the Companyâ€™s mortgage banking activities. These instruments may include financial forwards, futures contracts, and options written and purchased, which are used to hedge MSRs; while forward sales commitments are typically used to hedge the mortgage pipeline. Such instruments derive their cash flows, and therefore their values, by reference to an underlying instrument, index or referenced interest rate. The Company does not elect hedge accounting treatment for any of these derivative instruments and as a result, changes in fair value of the instruments (both gains and losses) are recorded in the Companyâ€™s Consolidated Statements of Income in Mortgage Banking Income.â€‹Mortgage Servicing Rights (â€œMSRsâ€)â€‹Derivatives contracts related to MSRs are used to help offset changes in fair value and are written in amounts referred to as notional amounts. Notional amounts provide a basis for calculating payments between counterparties but do not represent amounts to be exchanged between the parties and are not a measure of financial risk. On June 30, 2024, we had derivative financial instruments outstanding with notional amounts totaling $122.0 million related to MSRs, compared to $142.0 million on DecemberÂ 31, 2023. The estimated net fair value of the open contracts related to the MSRs was recorded as a gain of $500,000 at June 30, 2024, compared to a gain of $2.6 million at DecemberÂ 31, 2023.Mortgage Pipelineâ€‹The following table presents our notional value of forward sale commitments and the fair value of those obligations along with the fair value of the mortgage pipeline related to the held for sale portfolio:â€‹â€‹â€‹

The Company is obligated to subsequently repurchase a loan if such representation or warranty violation is identified by the purchaser. The aggregated principal balances of loans repurchased for the six months ended June 30, 2024, and 2023 were approximately $1.2 million and $975,000 respectively. There were approximately $52,000 in loss reimbursement and settlement claims paid in the six months ended June 30, 2024. There were no material loss reimbursement and settlement claims paid in the six months ended June 30, 2023.â€‹Loans held for sale have historically been comprised of residential mortgage loans awaiting sale in the secondary market, which generally settle in 15 to 45 days. received from customers, generally on an overnight or continuous basis, which are collateralized by investment securities owned or, at times, borrowed and re-hypothecated by the Company. Repurchase agreements are subject to terms and conditions of the master repurchase agreements between the Company and the client and are accounted for as secured borrowings. Repurchase agreements are included in Securities Sold Under Agreements to Repurchase on the Consolidated Balance Sheets. At June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, our repurchase agreements totaled $254.4 million and $241.0 million, respectively. All of our repurchase agreements were overnight or continuous (until-further-notice) agreements at June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023. These borrowings were collateralized with government, government-sponsored enterprise, or state and political subdivision-issued securities with a carrying value of $389.3 million and $410.4 million at June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, respectively. Declines in the value of the collateral would require us to increase the amounts of securities pledged.â€‹Federal Funds Purchasedâ€‹Federal funds purchased are generally overnight daily borrowings with no defined maturity date. Borrowings under these agreements are collateralized by stock in the FHLB, qualifying first and second mortgage residential loans, investment securities, and commercial real estate loans under a blanket-floating lien.â€‹As of June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, the Company had $300.0 and $100.0 million, respectively, of outstanding FHLB borrowings. Net eligible loans of the Company pledged via a blanket lien to the FHLB for advances and letters of credit at June 30, 2024, were approximately $11.3 billion (collateral value of $6.4 billion) and investment securities and cash pledged were approximately $196.7 million (collateral value of $166.8 million). This allows the Company a total borrowing capacity at the FHLB of approximately $6.6 billion. After accounting for letters of credit totaling $2.9 million and short-term FHLB borrowings of $300.0 million outstanding, the Company had unused net credit available with the FHLB in the amount of approximately $6.3 billion at June 30, 2024. The Company also has a total borrowing capacity at the FRB of $1.8 billion at June 30, 2024, secured by a blanket lien on $2.6 billion (collateral value of $1.8 billion) in net eligible loans of the Company. Jun. 30, 2024 Summary of Significant Accounting Policies Â Loans Loansâ€‹Loans that management has originated and has the intent and ability to hold for the foreseeable future or until maturity or pay off generally are reported at their unpaid principal balances, less unearned income and net of any deferred loan fees and costs, including unamortized fair value discount or premium. Unearned income on installment loans is recognized as income over the terms of the loans by methods that generally approximate the interest method. Interest on other loans is calculated by using the simple interest method on daily balances of the principal amount outstanding. If the loan is prepaid, the remaining unamortized fees and costs are charged or credited to interest income. Amortization ceases for non-accrual loans.â€‹We place loans on nonaccrual once reasonable doubt exists about the collectability of all principal and interest due. Generally, this occurs when principal or interest is 90 days or more past due, unless the loan is well secured and in the process of collection and excludes factored receivables. For factored receivables, which are commercial trade credits rather than promissory notes, the Companyâ€™s practice, in most cases, is to charge-off unpaid recourse receivables when they become 90 days past due from the invoice due date and the non-recourse receivables when they become 120 days past due from the statement due date. Past due status is based on the contractual terms of the loan. In all cases, loans are placed on non-accrual or charged-off at an earlier date if collection of principal or interest is considered doubtful.â€‹â€‹A loan is evaluated individually for loss when it is on nonaccrual and has a net book balance over $1 million. Large pools of homogeneous loans are collectively evaluated for loss and reserved at the pool level. Loans that experience insignificant payment delays and payment shortfalls generally are not classified as nonaccrual, provided that management expects to collect all amounts due, including interest accrued at the contractual interest rate for the period of delay. Allowance for Credit Losses ("ACL") - Investment Securities Allowance for Credit Losses (â€œACLâ€) â€“ Investment Securitiesâ€‹Management monitors the held to maturity securities portfolio to determine whether a valuation account should be recorded. Management evaluates impairment where there has been a decline in fair value below the amortized cost basis of a security to determine whether there is a credit loss associated with the decline in fair value at least quarterly, and more frequently when economic or market concerns warrant such evaluation. The Companyâ€™s methodology on how the ACL is calculated is disclosed in Note 1 â€“ Summary of Significant Accounting Policies, under the â€œACL â€“ Investment Securitiesâ€ section, of our Annual Report for the year ended DecemberÂ 31, 2023. As of June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, the Company had $2.4 billion and $2.5 billion, respectively, of held to maturity securities and no related valuation account.The Company follows its nonaccrual policy by reversing interest income in the income statement when the Company determines the interest for held to maturity securities is uncollectible. Therefore, management excludes the accrued interest receivable balance from the amortized cost basis in measuring expected credit losses on the investment securities and does not record an allowance for credit losses on accrued interest receivable. As of June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, the accrued interest receivables for all investment securities recorded in Other Assets were $25.8 million and $26.5 million, respectively.ACL â€“ Loans and Certain Off-Balance-Sheet Credit Exposures The ACL for loans held for investment reflects managementâ€™s estimate of credit losses that will result from the inability of our borrowers to make required loan payments. The Company makes adjustments to the ACL by recording a provision for or recovery of credit losses through earnings. Loans charged off are recorded as reductions to the ACL on the balance sheet and subsequent recoveries of loan charge-offs are recorded as increases to the ACL when they are received.â€‹Management estimates the allowance balance using relevant available information, from internal and external sources, relating to past events, current conditions, and reasonable and supportable forecasts. Historical credit loss experience provides the basis for the estimation of expected credit losses. Adjustments to historical loss information are made for differences in current loan-specific risk characteristics such as differences in underwriting standards, portfolio mix, credit quality, or term, as well as for changes in macroeconomic conditions, such as changes in unemployment rates, gross domestic product, property values, or other relevant factors. The Companyâ€™s estimate of its ACL involves a high degree of judgment; therefore, managementâ€™s process for determining expected losses may result in a range of expected losses. The Companyâ€™s ACL recorded in the balance sheet reflects managementâ€™s best estimate within the range of expected losses. The Company recognizes in net income the amount needed to adjust the ACL for managementâ€™s current estimate of expected losses.â€‹The Company generally uses an eight-quarter forecast period, based on a single forecast scenario or a blend of multiple forecast scenarios, using variables management believes are most relevant to each portfolio segment. For periods beyond which management is able to develop reasonable and supportable forecasts, the Company reverts to the average historical loss rate, reflecting historical default probabilities and loss severities, using a reversion speed that approximates four quarters. The forecast period and scenarios used are reviewed on a quarterly basis and may be adjusted based on management's view of the current economic conditions and level of predictability the forecast can provide. â€‹â€‹While quantitative allowance methodologies strive to reflect all risk factors, any estimate involves assumptions and uncertainties resulting in some level of imprecision. Imprecision exists in the estimation process due to the inherent time lag between obtaining information, performing the calculation, as well as variations between estimates and actual outcomes. As a result, amounts determined under the methodologies described above are adjusted by management to consider the potential impact of other qualitative factors not captured in the quantitative model adjustments which include, but are not limited to, the following: imprecision or conditions not captured in economic scenario assumptions, emerging risks related to either changes in the internal or external environment that are affecting specific portfolios, trends in loan or portfolio level credit metrics not captured in quantitative modeling, or model imprecision adjustments. The consideration of these items results in adjustments to allowance amounts included in the Companyâ€™s allowance for credit losses for each loan portfolio.â€‹The Companyâ€™s ACL is calculated using collectively evaluated and individually evaluated loans. Even though portions of the allowance may be allocated to specific loans or pools of loans, the entire allowance is available for any credit that, in managementâ€™s judgment, should be charged off.â€‹Management measures expected credit losses over the contractual term of a loan. When determining the contractual term, the Company considers expected prepayments but is precluded from considering expected extensions, renewals, or modifications. Loans modified to a borrower experiencing financial difficulty are reviewed by the Bank to determine if an interest rate reduction, a term extension, an other-than-insignificant payment delay, a principal forgiveness, or any combination of these has occurred.â€‹The ACL includes expected losses from modifications of receivables to borrowers experiencing financial difficulty. Losses on modifications of non-accrual loans over $1 million to borrowers experiencing financial difficulty are estimated on an individual basis. Because the effect of the remainder of modifications made to borrowers experiencing financial difficulty is already incorporated into the measurement methodologies used to estimate the allowance, they are accounted for as pooled loans.â€‹For purchased credit-deteriorated, otherwise referred to herein as PCD, assets are defined as acquired individual financial assets (or acquired groups of financial assets with similar risk characteristics) that, as of the date of acquisition, have experienced a more-than-insignificant deterioration in credit quality since origination, as determined by the Companyâ€™s assessment.

The Company records acquired PCD loans by adding the expected credit losses (i.e., allowance for credit losses) to the purchase price of the financial assets rather than recording through the provision for credit losses in the income statement. The expected credit loss, as of the acquisition day, of a PCD loan is added to the allowance for credit losses. The non-credit discount or premium is the difference between the unpaid principal balance and the amortized cost basis as of the acquisition date. Subsequent to the acquisition date, the change in the ACL on PCD loans is recognized through the Provision for Credit Losses in the Consolidated Statements of Income. The non-credit discount or premium is accreted or amortized, respectively, into interest income over the remaining life of the PCD loan on a level-yield basis.â€‹The Company follows its nonaccrual policy by reversing contractual interest income in the income statement when the Company places a loan on nonaccrual status. Therefore, management excludes the accrued interest receivable balance from the amortized cost basis in measuring expected credit losses on the portfolio and does not record an allowance for credit losses on accrued interest receivable. As of June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, the accrued interest receivables for loans recorded in Other Assets were $132.7 million and $127.0 million, respectively. â€‹The Company has a variety of assets that have a component that qualifies as an off-balance sheet exposure. These primarily include undrawn portions of revolving lines of credit and standby letters of credit. The expected losses associated with these exposures within the unfunded portion of the expected credit loss are recorded as a liability on the balance sheet. Management has determined that a majority of the Companyâ€™s off-balance sheet credit exposures are not unconditionally cancellable. Management completes funding studies based on internal historical data to estimate the percentage of unfunded loan commitments that will ultimately be funded to calculate the reserve for unfunded commitments. management applies this funding rate, along with the loss factor rate determined for each pooled loan segment, to unfunded loan commitments, excluding unconditionally cancellable exposures and letters of credit, to arrive at the reserve for unfunded loan commitments. As of June 30, 2024, and DecemberÂ 31, 2023, the liabilities recorded for expected credit losses on unfunded commitments were $50.2 million and $56.3 million, respectively. The current adjustment to the reserve for unfunded commitments is recognized through the Provision for Credit Losses in the Consolidated Statements of Income.The methodology used in the estimation of the allowance, which is performed at least quarterly, is designed to be dynamic and responsive to changes in portfolio credit quality and forecasted economic conditions. Changes are reflected in the pool-basis allowance and in reserves assigned on an individual basis as the collectability of classified loans is evaluated with new information. As the Companyâ€™s portfolio has matured, historical loss ratios have been closely monitored. The review of the appropriateness of the allowance is performed by executive management and presented to the Audit and Risk Committees of the Board of Directors for their review. The committees report to the board as part of the board's quarterly review of the Companyâ€™s consolidated financial statements. Reclassification and Correction â€‹Reclassification and Correctionâ€‹Certain amounts previously reported have been reclassified to conform to the current quarterâ€™s presentation. Such reclassifications had no effect on net income and shareholdersâ€™ equity.â€‹ X - ReferencesNo definition available. + Details Name: us-gaap_AccountingPoliciesAbstract Namespace Prefix: us-gaap_ Data Type: xbrli:stringItemType Balance Type: na Period Type: duration X - DefinitionDisclosure of accounting policy for credit loss on financial instrument measured at amortized cost basis, net investment in lease, off-balance sheet credit exposure, and available-for-sale debt security.
